Private Financial Aid

Financial aid from private resources can be the most elusive of all aid programs.

Available From:

- Local businesses;
- Civic groups;
- Churches;
- Private benefactors; and
- National organizations.

Where to Look

- High school guidance counselors;

- Write, call, or visit businesses, civic groups, churches, etc.;
- Public libraries; and
- The Internet. A couple of good websites to start with are: Fastweb and FinAid!

Recommendations

- Utilize all free options from local high school, college, and Internet services first.
- Exercise caution when utilizing professional help and only after exhausting all other free options. There are many organizations and individuals that provide services for a fee. Unfortunately, some of them are not looking out for your best interests.

The CSS Profile:

Some colleges and universities in Virginia require the CSS Profile (available through the CollegeBoard Website) be submitted in addition to the FAFSA to award additional institutional aid. The CSS Profile allows families to provide a more complete picture of their financial circumstances than the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) may provide alone. Hundreds of institutions use CSS Profile as a common application for nonfederal financial aid, reducing the number of times a student may need to fill out institution financial aid applications at multiple institutions.

The following institutions in Virginia require the CSS Profile be submitted in addition to the FAFSA: About CSS Profile – CSS Profile | College Board

In-State Tuition for Select Out-of-State Programs

The Academic Common Market (ACM) is a tuition-savings program that is administered by the Southern Regional Education Board (SREB) and 15 member states. The arrangement allows students to pay in-state tuition rates at out-of-state public institutions while studying in select programs not available in their home state. The following states are partners - Alabama, Arkansas, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Virginia, and West Virginia. States and institutions have the discretion to remove or restrict its participation and access to degree programs at any time.
